Mr. WHITTHORNE, from the Committee on Pensions, submitted the following

REPORT:

[To accompany bill S. 3305.]

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of Mrs. Louise Paul for an increase of pension, beg leave to report that it appears that by act of Congress approved August 4, 1886, a pension was given to Mrs. Paul as the widow of Brig. Gen. Gabriel R. Paul, U. S. Army, at the rate of $50 per month. It now appears that Mrs. Paul petitions for an increase of pension. The committee in considering this petition have had their attention called to the following official statement of facts in support of said petition:

Statement of facts in support of a bill to grant a pension to Louise Paul, widow of Brig. Gen. G. R. Paul, United States Army.

Brig. Gen. Gabriel R. Paul was born in Saint Louis, Mo., appointed to West Point from that State, and graduated in July, 1834. From 1834 to 1839 he was on frontier duty, and in 1839 was engaged in the Florida war. From 1839 to 1842 he was on recruiting duty, and in 1842 was in the war against the Seminole Indians, a camp of whom he surprised near Tampa Bay. He served with distinction throughout the Mexican war, having taken part in the defense of Fort Brown, the battle of Monterey, siege of Vera Cruz, the battle of Cerro Gordo (where he was wounded), Contreras, Chapultepec, and Molino del Rey. He led the storming party at Chapultepec, which captured the enemy's flag, and was for this act of gallantry brevetted major. For his service in Mexico he was presented by the citizens of Saint Louis with a sword. From 1848 to 1850 he was in garrison at Fort Leavenworth, 1850-'51 at Jefferson Barracks, and in 1851-'52 on frontier duty at Corpus Christi, Tex.

In 1852 he served with the Rio Grande expedition, in which he captured Carvajal and his gang of desperadoes. He was also in the Utah expeditions of 1858-59-60, and was engaged in the surprise and capture of a camp of hostile Indians on Spanish Fork. He was actively engaged in the late war, having rendered valuable service in New Mexico in 1861-'62. Subsequently he served with the Army of the Potomac, taking part in the battles of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville and in its Pennsylvania campaign. At the battle of Gettysburg, while in command of a brigade, he was seriously wounded, a bullet entering his head about 1½ inches behind the right eye and on a level with it, passing through his head and emerging through the left socket, carrying the left eye with it. Thus in an instant the vision of both eyes was completely destroyed, and at the same time the senses of smell and of hearing were greatly impaired. From the effects of this wound he suffered acutely ever after in the shape of violent attacks of pain in the head and of epilepsy, necessitating the constant presence of an attendant. During the last few years of his life these epileptic attacks became very frequent, not only daily, but sometimes to the number of six during the day and night. It was in one of these attacks of unusual severity, and the direct consequences of it, that he died, as shown by the report of the attending Army surgeon, a certified copy of which is appended hereto.

The career of General Paul was a series of gallant exploits in his country's defense, covering a period of nearly thirty years of actual service in the field, and embracing the Florida wars, the Mexican war, and closing with the battle of Gettysburg, where his sight was completely destroyed. In recognition of his gallantry on this occasion he was presented by the Twenty-ninth New Jersey Volunteers with a handsome jeweled sword, and was breveted brigadier-general. In February, 1865, he was retired from active service "for disability resulting from wounds received in line of duty," and was assigned to duty at the Soldier's Home, Washington, D. C., until June, 1865, when he was placed in charge of the Military Asylum at Harrodsburg, Ky. Here he remained until December 20, 1866. This was his last duty.

He died in this city on the 5th of May, 1886, having been in the service fifty-one years and ten months. His widow, Mrs. Louise Paul, is much in need, and asks that relief which the bill recently introduced by Senator Hawley provides—a relief for which there are very many precedents.

Respectfully submitted.

R. A. MÁRMION, U. S. N.

O. D. GREENE, Assistant Adjutant-General.

And in connection with the foregoing, the statement made by Mrs. Paul that owing to the condition of General Paul from the time of his receiving his severe wound it was "such as to entirely disable him from the management of his business," and that "he was so helpless as to need constant attendance," and that "the necessary expenses of his family took up all of General Paul's pay, so that at his death nothing had been saved," and that his widow and daughter are entirely dependent on such pension as may be granted by Congress.

These allegations are supported by the certificate of Dr. O'Reilly, surgeon United States Army (see Exhibit A), and by other testimony. General Paul was a helpless invalid almost from the date of his wound received at the battle of Gettysburg, requiring the constant attention of his wife, and therefore neither one was able either to contribute to an estate or save one. The amount of increase asked for is barely sufficient to secure the object Congress originally had in view in the allowance of a pension by the act of August 4 referred to, and believing this case to be one of exceptional merit and in the line of policy adopted by the Government, this committee recommend that the prayer of the petitioner be granted and submit the accompanying bill recommending its passage.

[Office of the attending surgeon, U. S. Army, No. 1733 G street, N. W.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 31, 1887.

SENATOR: As medical attendant for several years on the family of the late Brig. Gen. Gabriel R. Paul, I became well acquainted with their financial affairs. As you are probably aware, General Paul's condition, resulting from a severe wound, was such as to entirely disable him from the management of his business, and he was so helpless as to need constant attendance. The necessary expenses of the family took up all of General Paul's pay, so that at his death nothing had been saved. I believe that Mrs. and Miss Paul are entirely dependent on such pension as may be granted by Congress.

I am, Senator, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

A. M. O'REILLY, M. D.
