Editor's Introduction

Welcome to the fourth edition of Volume 2 of the University of Oklahoma's Oil and Gas, Natural Resources, and Energy Journal ("ONE J"). This edition features an article by Jordan D. Volino, titled Midstream Acreage Dedications: Covenants Running with the Land or a Conveyancing Confusion?

Mr. Volino is an attorney at Hampton and Milligan practicing in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. He specializes in mineral title examination, oil and gas law, property law, as well as federal and Indian title and leasing.

In Midstream Acreage Dedications, Mr. Volino analyzes the midstream gas gathering and acreage dedication clause, its legal application to create covenants that run with the land, and recent case law that has attempted to interpret the effects of such a clause on gas gathering contracts during the pendency of bankruptcy.

This edition also includes summaries of recent cases from around the country that are relevant to the energy industry.

ONE J graciously thanks Mr. Volino for allowing ONE J to publish his article. The editorial board has worked diligently to make this edition a success, and we are proud to produce the November edition of ONE J. As always, ONE J is made possible through the tireless efforts of our Editorial Advisor, Michael F. Waters.

We welcome your submissions for peer review, as well as your suggestions on topics for future editions. Please help us publicize ONE J by sharing the ONE J website link with others.
